April Fool's Issue 1989

All applicants for next year's class sent rejection letters

In a recent interview with Assistant Director of Admissions, Bob Brown, a major mistake was revealed. It appeared that during Spring Break, members of Brown's staff made a mix-up with the incoming class for the Fall of 1989.

It seems that all applicants were sent rejection letters. Brown stated, "I thought there was something strange going on when I came back from break. Our perspective rates have never been higher, but we were not receiving any acceptance letters from anyone. I couldn't understand what was wrong." Brown went on to say that there was a combination staff and computer mistake that has sent Wooster's enrollment down to nothing for the upcoming 1989-90 academic year. "I'm not quite sure what we are going to do about this mistake," said Brown. "I guess we could write to everyone who received the rejection letters, but it's probably too late now. I'm sure that they have already applied to other institutions by now. It is truly unfortunate."

When students around campus heard about the mix-up they thought it was quite funny. One student, who requested to remain anonymous, said "It's about time the administration screwed up majorly. I was really getting tired of them acting so superior." Another student went on to say that this mix-up will "finally put Wooster at the right student-room ratio."

Betty Rea, Housing Director stated that she thought the mistake is unfortunate but added that, "I have never had an easier time in trying to house everyone on campus for next semester. I can't say I'm sorry. My days are less hectic and there are fewer complaints. I love it."

Unless there is a last minute surge of high school students waiting to get into Wooster for next Fall, there will be no class of 1993. When asked to comment, Copeland grinned slightly and said, "I guess we'll just have to find other ways in which to absorb the loss in all of that tuition." Mom and Dad get ready for another letter from Hank!

Planning for program houses announced

WILLIAM VAN CLEAVE
Editor-and-Thief

Smith House will house the Mens' Issues Block. This group plans to promote sexism on campus through a series of speakers, debates and films. The group will also contribute weekly articles to the Voice arguing against women's rights.

Wesson House, on the other hand, plans to play a major role in Wooster's community. The D-W (or dog-walking) program received this dwelling. This program will work hard to walk Wooster townspeople's pets on the weekends. Also, once a month, they will strive to use pooper-scoopers around campus to clean up unsightly messes.

Heat Program, which will live in Anton house, is composed entirely of Wooster Voice members. This program has as its sole purpose keeping constant heat on the administration. This is done through constant appointments with many members of the administration, and weekly articles covering touchy issues. This program plans to promote misunderstanding between the student body and the administration.

BAP program (Brown nose a professor) will be run by Sandeep Bhatia during the 89-90 year. Members of this program must brown nose professors on a daily basis. They also plan to outline brown nosing techniques to match with various professors in the hopes of promoting brown nosing awareness.

The newly formed D.P.S., or Drinking Policy Squad, will inhabit Arm and Hammer house.

Some misunderstanding has resulted about this program's intentions.

At first, it was thought that the people in this program would help security look for violations in next year's drinking policy. Actually, according to one member, "the squad plans to be on the lookout for security to warn party members that they may be caught participating in underage drinking."

Phone confusion creates havoc

I. HUNGUP
Guest Writer

Phones have finally been installed for individual student use. The $4 million dollar plan, which involved a major over-night installation, was completed Friday morning at 4 a.m.

In a bizarre series of errors, however, communication between the phone company and the College's administration resulted in a fatal error. All of the student phones were placed in Holden rooms. Each dorm room in Holden currently has 9 phones in it. Lines, however, remain individual. With the computer message system, students at their dorms are paged to the phone where the incoming call is received.

The phone company remarked that this is already causing "amazing problems," because students who live in "dorms like Kenarden" are being paged to their own phones, "all of which are located in Holden. Worse, after a certain time, Holden doors are locked, so students are unable to get in to respond to their calls.

As one phone operator put it, "we [the administration and the phone company] got our wires crossed."

The administration, for the first time in Wooster history, chose not to make comment. They, however, did issue a statement. It read "we are not aware that there has been a problem with the phone system; we will be investigating this issue with the utmost expediency."

Out of the mouths of babes

Editor's note: The following story was inspired by an article run in College Press Services (CPS) entitled "New Buzz" Words on Campus." To the words and meanings by CPS Meghan Howes has added two columns of Wooster words and meanings. The column labelled Wooster's Word explains what word College of Wooster students would use to describe the original meaning defined by CPS, and the column labelled Wooster's Meaning is Wooster's definition of the original CPS word.

Wooster's Meaning	Word	Wooster's Word	Meaning
The usual reply to "It's baked potato night!" Also, used after the guest of honor at a party has passed out Someone named Ralph is talking to another person on a spray painted phone in Lowry	Groovy	Nice	When speaking in a sarcastic tone, it means stodgy or old-fashioned
The ritual of wrapping one's teeth around the top of a Moosehead beer and snapping off the cap Something one can never do in front of Lowry	Bite Moose	blew it yakked puked	To vomit
	Parallel Parking	F--k Off	Get lost
		the wild thing get together	A term meaning sexual intercourse "Horizontal Bop" also enjoyed a vogue as a euphemism for sex When one kissed on the hand, one "played tonsil hockey" or "boxed tonsils"

Job Predictions for Students After Graduation:

Dave Royse, known for his skills with computers concerning his job in News Services and on the Wooster Voice, has been offered an internship at IBM.

Sandeep Bhatia has been offered the presidency of four countries when he graduates in May. When asked how he got the jobs, Bhatia responded "I have a 25 page resumé; how can any country resist me?"

Amy Hollander, after graduation, plans to do Julie DeRitis imitations for money. The performances should be priceless (heh heh).

Marriages:

Elizabeth Kirkpatrick and Joe Bickley plan to be married this summer. Elizabeth's best friend Frank Andorka will serve as best man.

Wooster Voice Awards:

Lisa Walsh received the "Most Likely to Marry a Sig" award for outstanding service to the Sigs.

Khalid Sherdil was awarded the Wooster Voice columnist of the year award for his outstanding column, Internationalist.

Glasnost? Gladly!!!

MICHAEL BOSO
Guest Writer

Following in the spirit of Glasnost, the Soviet policy of social and political openness, students at Wooster's Russian Studies Program House (Reed House) secretly adopted a new communal shower policy introduced this semester to the members of the house by Jennifer Dunn.

Dunn returned from the Soviet Union in December after a semester long study program in Krasnodar, Russia. She lives with seven other Russian students and their director, Christopher Minarich.

The shower policy involves the use of a sign which, when positioned in certain ways, informs the other Ruskies who is welcomed to join in communal bathing.

The policy has alleviated demand problems in the mornings when men and women rush to the bathroom to grab the first shower. Dunn, who has been especially enthusiastic about the program, said, "It's usually hard to wake up at 7:00 a.m., but a shower with one of the guys will pick things up right away!"

The men don't seem to mind the new policy, either. Sophomore Ben Miller said that the program helps with study habits. "It's a great reason to get out of bed in the morning!"

Student goes insane at Scot lanes

PAULINE ACH
Shaft Writer

Yesterday a senior male student, recently identified as Joe Bickley, went on a rampage in Scot lanes. Using two bowling balls, he smashed the pinball machines, video games and pool tables.

"He was crazy, man; he ran around smashing things and yelling 'I want candy'" said a witness who wished not to be identified.

From there he ran into the Voice office and took assistant editor Amy Hollander as a hostage. From there, he ran into Mom's Truck Stop and demanded candy and a plane ticket to Siberia in exchange for his hostage's safety.

An onlooker tried to call security but only got the answering machine.

Two hours later Security arrived and found Bickley and Hollander sharing french fries. Security was unwilling to pay any ransom for Hollander's life; they even refused Bickley's final request for a shot of whiskey. Bickley then ran back to his room in Douglass where police apprehended him.

When Ken Plusquellec was asked to comment he said "we are forming a committee to investigate bowling ball violence."

Ichabod's changes face; Runser rules; prices rocket

JULIE WOOSLEY
Stiff Writer

The results of the contest are in, and Keith Nahigian is credited with submitting the only and winning entry: The Hot and Happy Hell Hole, which can be conveniently shortened to 4-H, a name that brings to mind the wholesome, back-to-nature fun that Wooster students crave. The new student club will be wallpapered with copies of old senior I.S. theses, complete with advisors' comments and corrections. Also, the picture of Ichabod will be replaced with a picture of Ollie North.

The most surprising news of all is that, under the new name, Nahigian managed to sell the club to the Florence O. Wilson Bookstore, which plans to run it "as a business should be run." Alcohol will be served to all students for $3.50 a cup, and there will be a modest cover charge of $6.00 for D.J.'s and $9.00 for live bands.

"We want the Hot and Happy Hell Hole to be a student club-and more," said Ed Runser, manager of Flo O.

The club will be open nightly

next fall, with a set weekly agenda as follows:

Monday will feature videos on self improvement and study tips. Tuesday will be Pat Sajak Night, and Wednesday will be Crazy Hat Night, inspired by some crazy kids at a recent EKO party. Thursday will be Polka Night, and Friday will be Disco Fever Night. Saturday will be Dance-In-Your-

Underwear-Like-Tom-Cruise Night.

Sunday, for a really religious experience, plan to attend Rob Abernethy Worship Night. First Year women are especially welcome.

The first band of the year will be "Post- It Note Child and the Inept Family."
